

Capacity Building

Training and resources to support your internal course developers.

Overview

We know that organisations have different skills, different processes and different subjects to teach. That's why we will work close with you to provide a tailored combination of training, resources and support to get your internal e-learning development process up and running.

Our proven e-learning capacity bundle includes the following elements:

- Reusable e-learning course templates - enhancing the visual appeal of your courses and speeding up production
- Content style guides - documenting your in-house approach and guidelines
- Instructional design training - how to re-wire the training mind-set for what works online
- Authoring tool training - showing you how to use the latest development tools and techniques

Whether you are getting started or looking to take your course design to the next level, our capacity building service can help.

Capacity Building

Who is capacity building for?

Our capacity building service supports organisations to develop their own online learning that is both visually appealing and educationally effective.

We work with organisations in all sectors and at all stages of their development journey.

Whether you are an in-house trainer or a team looking to up-skill and learn, our tailored-specific capacity building service will transform your learning content.
